SUMMARY.

The British Ministry is now-strictly owing to Russia and Austria virtually demanding the punishment of the assassin.

It is alleged that King Peter was aware beforehand of the military conspiracy, and that he urged the assembly of bloodshed, declaring that the assassin would be killed.

The Roumanian Court has gone into mourning for a fortnight.

The attitude of the United States and Holland towards Russia is similar to that of Great Britain.

The American newspaper assert that the British Government is the most powerful proponent of the cause that a foreign nation could make.

Captain Scott was on 100 unsuccessfully attacked the Sultan of Sokoto's wall, Durai, The Sultan's court was not.

Mr. Chamberlain says that Lord Tennyson will return to England in December, and that his term of office will not be renewed.

It is rumoured at Aden that General Manning and Colonel Cobbe have effected a junction and have pushed forward.

The Russian Ambassador at Washington is disposed to open two Manchurian ports if the Powers admit the supremacy of Russia's interest in Manchuria.

The members of the Russian and the Russian Chamber of Commerce have approved of Mr. Chamberlain's policy.

The conference of members of the House of Commons interested in the Russian and the Russian Chamber of Commerce has been held on Thursday evening, and electricity will meet on Thursday evening for a vigorous crusade in support of Mr. Chamberlain.

Mr. Chamberlain's amendment to the Finance Bill in favour of the retention of the corn duty has been rejected by 415 votes to 30.

A woman has been sentenced to death at Berlin for poisoning her first husband with arsenic.

A fortune-teller had predicted that the woman was destined to lose her husband, and that she would be happy with the seventh.

It is reported that the Belgian committee tried to blow up with dynamite the palace of the Grand Duke of Tuscany.

The "Times" Vienna correspondent says that revolutionary events connected with the Albanian bodyguard have undoubtedly occurred at the Yildiz Ciosk, though the cause is the Russian and the Russian Chamber of Commerce.

The Deceased Wife's Heir Bill has been passed through the Grand Committee in the House of Commons.

Recent reports that 25,000 Orange River Colony burghers have sworn abstinence, only a few abstaining.

The Governor of Malta, under instructions from the British Government, has issued a proclamation to the Legislative Council to sign, and has increased the number of official members of the Council.

The "Standard" says that the Nationalists will accept the bill without any amendments.

Mr. Chamberlain has admitted the valuable diamonds in the Treasury.

The Council has withdrawn from the passenger line agreement with the Atlantic shipping companies on the ground of unfair treatment.

The "National Zeitung" says that Mr. Phipps Morgan's shipping trust is a failure, and that there is a danger of the Americanization of German shipping.

IN FEDERAL SESSION

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.
(FROM OUR SPECIAL REPORTERS.)

MELBOURNE, June 22.

One of the local newspapers in two or three of its issues last week accused the Commonwealth of extravagance, and Mr. Hume Cook (Vic.), on notice asked the Prime Minister to answer the charge.

day on the subject. Sir E. Barton read a resolution which went very much into detail, and brought an interruption from Mr. Joseph Cook (N.B.W.), who submitted, on a point of order, that the reply should have been laid on the table in the form of a return. The Speaker ruled that there was nothing in the Standing Orders to uphold the point of order, but thought it would be better if such long answers were laid on the table in the form of returns. The

The Judiciary Bill was then taken in committee, the consideration of clause 40, the "exclusive jurisdiction" clause, being resumed. In the first line of the clause the words High Court were submitted to "Federal Court," and the Attorney-General sought to amend sub-clause II, which referred to suits against the Commonwealth. Mr. Glynn, however, was on his feet with a prior amendment. He moved the omission of sub-clause B, which gave exclusive jurisdiction to the High Court in all matters affecting consuls or other representatives of other countries in respect of any act done by them in their capacity as such consuls or representatives. Mr. Drakin opposed this on behalf of the Government, and when the question was put and declared against him he called for a division, but seeing that members were against him he allowed the sub-clause to go. The Attorney-General then moved the second resolution, which was General's amendment to sub-clause E, describing with some particularity what the sub-clause could be described generally as "suits against the Commonwealth," was then made, and the clause was amended to read as follows: "The jurisdiction of the State courts, was extensively altered. As drafted it contained six sub-clauses, but the first three were struck out, and one new one was proposed providing that every appeal from the decision of the Supreme Court of the State should Court of a State from which, at the establishment of the Commonwealth, appeal lay to the Queen's Bench, shall be brought to the High Court. The discussion on this was protracted, but eventually it was carried by a majority of one, the numbers being 24 to 23.

This brought the House to part 7—"removal of causes"—and a beginning clause 42, 43, and 44 were removed from the bill. One of these reference to the removal as of right to the High Court, another to the removal of cases of necessity, and the third to the removal of cases of emergency, and the third to the procedure for removal as of right. Clause 45, which dealt with the removal of suits from the State to the High Court, was then debated. The Attorney General moved a couple of minor amendments, which were agreed to, and then a general discussion on the clause took place. One of its provisions ran that a suit might be removed, as of course it was, to the Supreme Court. The House then passed upon a motion in open Court by the Attorney-General, and on his behalf, and several members took exception to this, although Mr. Denkin assured the House that the power would not be capriciously exercised. Other members—and the debate was confined almost wholly to legal members—thought that power to order the removal ought to be restricted, even if the matter of federal jurisdiction were involved, just as the

as the jurisdiction of the Court as a tribunal of the "first instance" has been, while still other members were of opinion that power of removal ought not to be permissible at any stage of the case as provided in the clause; but that the only power to remove it to the High Court ought to be upon appeal. Eventually the clause was passed on the Attorney-General promising to recommit it with amendments which he thought would reflect the mind of the committee, and also on 46 to 31, including the main clause of this part of the bill) were postponed. Clause 52 enacted that the Chief Justice's salary should be £3500 a year, while the other Judges should be paid £3000 a year each, and that they should receive travelling expenses when on circuit. There had been premonitory rumblings during the second reading debate concerning the large salaries proposed, but when the storm burst it was at first mild. Two or three members protested against the sums proposed, and Mr Joseph Cook (N.A.W.) moved, as a beginning, to reduce the proposed salary of the Chief Justice to £2500 a year. In the debate which followed the januaries were several times mentioned, and after about an hour the Attorney-General offered to postpone the clause until after that relating to pensions was disposed of. To enable this to be done Mr. Cook withdrew his amendment, and clause 53 was called on. The debate which ensued on a

It was within a few minutes of 11 o'clock when the division was taken. The amendment was intended as a test one to affirm the principle one way or the other. The Government was beaten by 23 votes to 20, and progress was at once reported, and leave given to get up again under Mr. McManis' eye. The source of an interview with a "richard" <sup>dispute</sup> yesterday, and "I take exception to the following passage in a leader entitled 'Federation and the Critics', published in to-day's issue of 'The Herald':— 'Immediate disappointment too was bound to follow the adoption of a scheme which was eloquently predicted would be a cur for all the ills of the land, from the delicate water supply at Coolgardie to the low prices of silver, and those among Mr. Wain's audience who were persuaded that they would pay for their share in federation by depriving themselves of the luxuries, the pleasures, and the

"I feel that a paragraph of this nature in a newspaper that has rendered such distinguished services to the cause of union, and but for whose active intervention could not have been carried in New South Wales, is likely to bring discredit upon the Commonwealth. If the statement was not correct it should be at once removed. Knowing that it was incorrect, I telegraphed to Sir George Turner inquiring what was the new cost of federation per head for the population of Australia, and I have received the following answer:

reply: "Amount per head of new federal expenditures for completed year ended June 30, 1902, was 5d, but this includes 4d. for non-recurring items such as Coronation celebrations, &c., charged as extraordinary expenditure. The total for 11 months of the current financial year, including all items, is 1s 5d.—G. T. Allen, secretary, Treasury."

cost of federation. The mistake has arisen from the fact that the cost of the transfers, services, viz., the Post Office, the Customs and Defence, and the new cost of federation, such as the cost of Parliament, the Federal Civil Service, and other outgoings. It was obviously unfair to estimate expenditure by the Federal Government in respect to the Post Office, the Customs and Defence as new expenditures minus that expenditure was greater than that incurred when these services were under State control. It is true that the Customs taxation of New South Wales was reduced with the provision of the la-

It has been increased, and, with the 2d per band referred to by Sir George Turner as being the cost of the new services, the whole of the increased taxation has been returned to the Transvaal of each State. It has been sent in New South Wales in payment of old-age pensions and in meeting other charges which, if that money had not been received, must have been met out of increased taxation.

"It is said that the expenditure is unwarranted. The blame attaches not to the federal but to the State authorities; hence, it is misleading to speak of The truth is, as Mr. Leaskin said, the people must look at federal expenditure not only through the microscope of State needs, but through the telescope of Australian needs."

[It will take rather more than Mr. Allen's telegram to convince the people of New South Wales that their share in federation has cost them no more than the fee for registering a dog, or that their share in the revenues of Customs has only gone in
